ABSTRACT

A quantization method for an iterative decoder. In the quantization method, received signal levels are equally divided into predetermined intervals within a range 2^n (n is a positive integer) times greater than the transmission signal level range of the transmitter, and the level of the input signal received in each period is quantized.

5